

ABSTRACT

A system, computer product and method are provided for designing, creating, implementing and managing incentive programs based on a reward currency in association with an interconnected network of computers. The system, computer product and method provided further comprises an e-commerce facility for processing electronic transactions based on the reward currency.

[illegible]